A Research and Summative Evaluation of the Barnahus West Project - an integrated response to reduce trauma being experienced by children and their families as a result of child sexual abuse (CSA)

Date of Issue: 15/05/24

Clarification deadline: 12.00 pm 26/06/24

Response deadline: 12.00 pm 10/07/24

Part 1: Introduction

- 1.1 The Minister of The Department of Children, Equality, Disability, Integration and Youth invites responses to this Request for Quotes from suppliers for A Research and Summative Evaluation (RSE) Project of the Barnahus West Service- an integrated response to reduce trauma being experienced by children and their families as a result of child sexual abuse (CSA) at The Department of Children, Equality, Disability, Integration and Youth Affairs, Block 1, Miesian Plaza, 50-58 Baggot Street Lower, Dublin 2, D2 XW14.

 References to the Department in this RFQ shall mean references to the Minister.
- 1.2 National implementation of the Barnahus model is a significant initiative to help victims and survivors of childhood sexual abuse. The national roll-out of the model involves three Departments (Department of Children, Equality, Disability, Integration and Youth, Department of Health and Department of Justice) working together, with the four agencies that will be involved in the delivery of services (Tusla, Children's Health Ireland, the Health Service Executive and An Garda Síochána). The Icelandic model, which is being adapted to an Irish context, is a child-friendly, interdisciplinary and multiagency model of service that brings child protection, policing, forensic medical, and therapeutic services together, under one roof, to provide an integrated response for children who experience sexual abuse and their families.

A pilot was launched in in September 2019 in the West of Ireland, based in Galway, with referrals commencing to the service in November 2020. An appraisal of the pilot was completed in 2020¹ (the '2020 appraisal'), and the recommendations from this appraisal were adapted into a Roadmap for national implementation. The 29 recommendations in the 2020 Roadmap were extracted from the report of the 2020 appraisal, which was commissioned by the IDG to examine and evaluate the pilot Barnahus /One House service provision model in Galway, and to identify issues which might be associated with the scaling-up of the service and its provision on a long-term, stable basis. These recommendations also informed the development of an Interdepartmental Agreement and terms of reference for the Barnahus National Agency Steering Committee (BNASC). Successful tenderers for this contract will be supplied with all relevant documentation and background information.

It is planned that in addition to the dedicated centre, known as Barnahus West, two further locations in the East and South will provide national coverage and access for victims and families to the service. Development of these services is already underway. National implementation is also being supported by a Joint EU-Council of Europe project - Support the implementation of the Barnahus project in Ireland which is providing targeted assistance to effectively adapt of the model to an Irish context.

The Department of Children, Equality, Disability, Integration and Youth wishes to commission a Research and Summative Evaluation project (the 'RSE Project'), focussing on the Barnahus West, to be carried out by suitably qualified and experienced persons, as was recommended in the 2020 appraisal. Utilising research and evaluation methods, impacts of the pilot should be determined. This should be through a systematic assessment of the implementation and outcomes of the interagency response that involves understanding how the model is being, or has been implemented and what effects it has, for whom and why. A process evaluation should be conducted based on the 2020 Roadmap, which was developed based on recommendations from the 2020 Appraisal, chiefly focused on operations in Barnahus West and how outcomes for the children referred to the service can improve but also on the performance of the two other Barnahus locations in the East and the South. Recommendations based on the RSE Project should be made to assist in national implementation of the model and establishment of services in the East and the South.

A primary goal of the RSE Project is to determine how to measure impacts of the model in an Irish context. An impact assessment will seek to establish what existing data/feedback is available that can be utilised to evaluate the implementation of the model and how this could be applied at a national level.

Further information about what this involves is outlined in Part 5 of this RFQ, Requirements and Specification.

- 1.3 Any contract that may result from this competition will be issued for an initial term of 6 month(s) which if required could be extended by an additional period of 3 months. It is proposed that work will commence in July 2024. The person/s appointed will be required to provide regular updates, at agreed intervals, to the Inter Departmental Group established to progress and oversee the project.
- 1.4 No commitment of any kind, contractual or otherwise, shall exist unless and until a formal written contract has been executed in accordance with the provisions of paragraph 2.10 of this RFQ.

Part 5: Requirements and Specifications

Background

The development and implementation of the Barnahus model in Ireland is a cross Government, multi-Agency project, which is a significant initiative to help victims and survivors of childhood sexual abuse. The Icelandic model, which is being adapted to an Irish context, is a child-friendly, interdisciplinary and multiagency model of service that brings child protection, policing, medical, therapeutic and forensic services together, under one roof, to provide services for children who experience sexual abuse and their families.

The overall importance of the integration and coordination of services for children who have been sexually abused was highlighted in the HSE commissioned report on the development of a national model for sexual abuse services for children in 2011², and the final report of the Ferns 4 National Steering Committee in 2014³.

In the Garda Inspectorate Report (2018)⁴, the Icelandic Barnahus model and the services provided by Rowan House in Northern Ireland were included in an overall consideration of joint services. In that report, the need for further joint inter-departmental work to assess and develop an appropriate service for the Irish context was acknowledged. The HSE, and subsequently Tusla, established a National Steering Group to commence the development of a multiagency approach to sexual abuse services.

It was determined that adapting the Icelandic Barnahus model to an Irish context would be the best way forward. An Interdepartmental Group (IDG) was established in February 2018 which brings together representatives from the key Departments and State Agencies to coordinate a child centred response to sexual abuse allegations, and to develop an appropriate governance framework for this multiagency service.

The membership of the IDG includes representatives from the Department of Children, Equality, Disability, Integration and Youth, (DCEDIY), Department of Health (DoH), Department of Justice (DoJ), the Health Service Executive (HSE), Children's Health Ireland (CHI), An Garda Síochána (AGS) and Tusla Child and Family Agency (Tusla).

The IDG identified the West of Ireland, based in Galway as the appropriate location for the first Barnahus-model service. The principles of the Barnahus model had effectively been operating in Galway prior to the launch of the service with a cross-agency team holding bi-weekly case review meetings to provide a coordinated response to children referred to Barnahus.

The Galway project was launched in September 2019 with referrals commencing to the service in November 2020. Services in Barnahus West are carried out in a bespoke centre on the outskirts of Galway city, which allows the three agencies (Tusla, the HSE, An Garda Siochána) to provide services for children under one roof. This bespoke centre was designed in consultation with service users from Tusla. A child and youth participation working group consulted with young people about the design of the building, the information leaflets and the location and visibility of the service in the community.

Key professionals in child protection, health care and An Gardaí Síochána meet regularly to review cases of child sexual abuse and plan the steps that need to be taken. Barnahus West is co-located with the adult Sexual Assault Treatment Unit (SATU) service, with separate entrances and rooms for children /adults and shared facilities for staff, including capacity to store forensic evidence.

It is planned that in addition to Barnahus West two further locations in the East and South will provide national coverage and access for victims and families to the service. It is intended that implementation of the Barnahus model should be standardised as much as possible in all regions, in accordance with the Promise 'European Barnahus Quality Standards'⁵, and that in this process of harmonisation there should not be a backsliding of services that are already in place.

Joint EU Commission-Council of Europe project - Support the implementation of the Barnahus project in Ireland

DCEDIY been awarded financial and technical support from the EU and the Council of Europe under the Technical Support Instrument, to help expand the Barnahus model in Ireland.

The European Union/Council of Europe Joint Project aims to strengthen Ireland's response to child sexual abuse by supporting the national implementation of the Barnahus model, adapted from Iceland to an Irish context. The project is being implemented by the Council of Europe and aims to ensure that delays in the treatment of children who have experienced child sexual abuse are reduced, and that all children who are victims in such cases, and their families, benefit from a child-friendly approach in the justice and healthcare systems, and a coordinated approach that is centred on the child.

The work being carried out under the Joint EU/Council of Europe project is in tandem with and complementary to work underway—at a national, regional and local level on the development of the model. The RSE Project that is the subject of this Request for Quotes will not include any assessment of work being carried out under the Joint EU/Council of Europe project. However, the evaluation should take cognisance of the work that is being carried out in parallel under the Joint EU/Council of Europe project.

The Inception report of the project was recently published⁶, which is the product of extensive consultation with stakeholders and service providers on the current challenges and innovations in service provision to child victims of child sexual abuse and their families. More information on the Joint EU/Council of Europe project is available on the project website⁷.

Detailed Specifications

The Research and Summative Evaluation project (the 'RSE Project') focussing on the Barnahus West service to be carried out by suitably qualified and experienced person was recommended in the 2020 appraisal (mentioned in Part 1 of this document).

The 2020 appraisal and resulting recommendations were adapted into a Roadmap for national implementation. The 29 recommendations in the 2020 Roadmap were extracted from the report of the 2020 appraisal, which was commissioned by the IDG to examine and evaluate the pilot Barnahus /One House service provision model in Galway, and to identify issues which might be associated with the scaling-up of the service and its provision on a long-term, stable basis. These recommendations also informed the development of an Interdepartmental Agreement and terms of reference for the Barnahus National Agency Steering Committee (BNASC). Successful tenderers for this contract will be supplied with all relevant documentation and background information. The RSE Project is not a primary search of data, but a desk based exercise focusing on already existing data. Where the successful candidate indicates that supplementary evidence is required in order to complete the final report, this will be considered by the Department in addition to an option of extending the timeline by up to two months.

A key outcome of the RSE Project is that the evaluation of the implementation of the model in Barnahus West since referrals commenced under the model in the region informs improvements in the delivery of Barnahus services on a national basis as services continue to be developed in the South and East. This evaluation should comprise of a systematic assessment of the implementation and outcomes of the model in Barnahus West that involves understanding how the model is being, or has been implemented and what effects it has, for whom and why and how outcomes for the children referred to the service can improve. Impacts should be determined, and recommendations based on this evaluation should be made to assist in national implementation of the model. These recommendations will inform decision making by the IDG on the future implementation of the model at a national level.

The RSE Project should assess how services have been implemented, the processes utilised for service delivery and experiences with Barnahus West (including feedback provided to Barnahus West). A primary goal of the RSE project is to determine how to measure impacts of the model in an Irish context, to establish what existing data/feedback is available that can be utilised to evaluate the implementation of the model, and how this could be applied at a national level.

The resulting report from the RSE Project should document clearly the context in which the service was delivered and that the evaluation is taking place. The report should also take account of implementation of the model at a national level and efforts to ensure standardisation as national implementation progresses, including concurrent pieces of work such as the Joint EU-Council of Europe project. The RSE Project should be conducted in line with best research ethics practice, and in line with Children First, and the Data Protection Acts, and the HSE national consent for research policy.

The RSE Project will include:

A summative evaluation of implementation of the Barnahus West service to assess if mechanisms to reduce re-traumatisation introduced under the model can have a measurable impact on outcomes for child survivors of sexual abuse, and how this would be measured. This should be on a continuum basis, whereby the pathway of the child through the service is examined, from referral through to assessment, specialist interview, interventions, and their path through the justice system up to and including prosecutions of cases.

As part of this task the availability of data, both qualitative and quantitative, that can be analysed to demonstrate a measurable impact from baseline should be identified in co-operation with Barnahus West and other stakeholders as needed. It should be ensured that the utilisation of such data in the evaluation is GDPR compliant. This task should also include the perspective of service users, with particular focus on feedback from the child directly.

2. Progress should be assessed against the 2020 Roadmap, chiefly focused on operations in Barnahus West but also including the two other Barnahus sites in the South and in the East. This will include, but is not limited to, areas like governance structures at a national, regional and local level; improved and more formalised interagency working;

joint specialist interviewing; the implementation of child-friendly justice approach to child sexual abuse in Ireland; key performance indicators with meta-data and other agreed statistical information and recommendations made on general service development such as budget, the co-location of services with adult services and staffing arrangements.

3. Based on this evaluation, recommendations should be made that can be applied to the further development of services in the South and the East. These recommendations will inform decision making by the IDG on the future delivery of services at a national level. The evaluation and subsequent report and recommendations may also inform activities in the Joint EU-Council of Europe project, such as the development of guidance documents and tools for the operation of Barnahus at a national level.

Timeframe

The timeframe for completion of this evaluation is six months (plus capacity for a three-month extension if needed), from [Month/Year]. This timeline is on the basis that the RSE Project is not a primary search of data, but a desk based exercise focusing on already existing data. An option of extending the timeline by up to two months may be considered where the successful candidate indicates that supplementary evidence is required in order to complete the final report.

A project plan / Gantt chart indicating the key milestones and deliverables will be agreed with the successful contractor at the commencement of the work.

It is anticipated that an interim report will be provided to DCEDIY in September 2024, outlining work completed against agreed milestones and deliverables and should include a documentary review and an assessment of the availability of data to inform the evaluation. Regular progress updates should be given to DCEDIY as part of review procedures established by DCEDIY, with a plan on regular communications to be agreed with the successful tenderer.

Output

The core output from the analysis will be a report (including an executive summary) for the Department which addresses the requirements set out above, and will be subject to review before acceptance. DCEDIY will establish review procedures, which will include input from the IDG, and determine the mechanisms for oversight of the project.
